Introduction to the DISCstyles™ Sales Report

Congratulations on taking the DISCstyles Sales Assessment™. Mastering the sales adaptability techniques outlined in this report may be one of the most important sales skills you ever learn.

Many of us grew up believing the wisdom of treating others the way you would like to be treated: the Golden Rule. We soon realized that another practical rule to sell by seemed to be what Dr. Tony Alessandra calls The Platinum Rule®: Treat others the way they want to be treated.

Here is the most valuable feature of this report: Although the first part of this report focuses on your behavioral style, the true value is contained in the second section called “Application.” Sales mastery of The Platinum Rule only consists of three simple steps: 1) Know your natural behavioral tendencies, 2) Pick up on your customer’s observable behaviors while selling, and 3) Adapt your selling style to fit the customer’s buying style. That’s it!

Now, here’s the “Aha!” moment for you: You don’t even need to understand your own style to be able to read another person and adapt to their buying style!

This report is every bit as much prescriptive (remedies for connecting with others... today!) as it is descriptive (getting you to understand your own DISC behavioral style).

Has your sales process ever succeeded with one person, then “bombed out” with the very next prospect? We all have experienced this and shrugged it off thinking, “That’s just the way it is.” However, things do not have to be that way. Nearly every sales interaction with each prospect can be a success - if you know how to make it happen!

If you are interested in improving your sales results, we recommend that you start reading the section on “Application” first, practice the proven techniques, then return to this report and read the first section about the strengths and weaknesses of your behavioral style. Your ability to recognize the “style mode” being displayed by another person, and making small adaptations in the pace and focus of the conversation is the quickest, surest path to sales mastery!

BEHAVIORAL STYLES

Historical, as well as contemporary, research reveals more than a dozen various models of our behavioral differences, but many share one common thread: the grouping of behavior into four basic categories. The DISCstyles System focuses on patterns of external, observable behaviors using scales of directness and openness that each style exhibits. See the table below. Because we can see and hear these external behaviors, it becomes much easier to “read” people. This model is simple, practical, and easy to remember and use. See page five of this report for a summary of each of the styles.

STYLE	TENDENCIES
Dominance	Tends to be direct and guarded
Influence	Tends to be direct and open
Steadiness	Tends to be indirect and open
Conscientious	Tends to be indirect and guarded

HOW TO USE THIS REPORT

This DISC report is divided into two parts. Part I focuses on understanding your DISC style characteristics. Please note that there is no “best” style. Each style has its unique strengths and opportunities for continuing improvement and growth. Any behavioral descriptions mentioned in this report are only tendencies for your style group and may or may not specifically apply to you personally. Part II discusses the concept of adaptability and offers several action plans for you and others who interact with you.

ADAPTABILITY

In addition to understanding your style, the report will identify ways that you can apply your style strengths or modify your style weaknesses in order to meet the needs of a particular prospect or customer. This is called adaptability. Social scientists call it “social intelligence.” There has been a lot written lately on how your social intelligence is just as important as your Intelligence Quotient (IQ) in being successful in today’s world. In some cases, social intelligence is even more important than IQ. The concept of adaptability is discussed in detail in the What is Behavioral Adaptability? section of this report.

Part I Understanding Yourself

General Characteristics

The narration below serves as a general overview of your behavioral tendencies. It sets the stage for the report which follows, and provides a framework for understanding and reflecting on your results. We've occasionally provided some coaching ideas so that you can leverage your strengths whenever possible to maximize your personal success.

You have a remarkable ability to shift the mood smoothly from serious to lighthearted. This is a rare skill. You are able to lighten the mood of a tense situation without aggressive humor; that is, without making fun of anyone or undermining the seriousness of the situation. Your methods show that you understand the importance of the situation, but are nevertheless able to lighten the mood with a thought or quip. Not only does this release some of the tension, it also may re-focus some creativity toward a successful solution.

You show a strong ability to meet others easily and demonstrate social poise in small or large group situations. This is an important strength, and one that the team and the organization should amplify for you. You can maximize this ability by choosing assignments and situations that will illuminate this strength.

You are very people-oriented -- you like people, and want to be liked in return. This is a trait that might put you on an emotional roller coaster at times. You're at the peak when things are going smoothly, and people are getting along appropriately. You fall into the valley when people aren't getting along, or when they are not happy about something you've said or done. When this happens, it may feel as if the wind has been taken from your sails. Our coaching to you is to suggest that you meet with the unsatisfied person and proactively determine what you can do to remedy the situation.

You have confidence in your ability to motivate others through to the desired outcome. You are able to persuade people on the team when necessary, not in a manipulative way, but in a way that gets the job done and keeps people engaged and on board. There are times, however, when people may disappoint you. When this happens, you may tend to become discouraged with your own motivational skills. We coach you not to become discouraged, and to realize that some people simply may not be as persuadable as others.

Your response pattern indicates that you tend to be optimistic and rely on that optimism to engage and motivate others. This strength can be used in a variety of situations to bring many different types of people together to cooperate on a project. Though some of these people may not seem to fit perfectly within the team, you can serve as a catalyst to get everyone on board.

You are very good at promoting ideas and generating enthusiasm in others. When there's an idea that you believe in, you have the remarkable ability to sell the idea (in a proactive and positive, not manipulative, way). Additionally, when people need a shot of motivation, energy, or enthusiasm, you have the ability to make your own internal optimism contagious to others.

You tend to be action-oriented, able to handle many projects simultaneously. You have a rare ability to skillfully multi-task. However, there is an opportunity cost, as small details might get overlooked, or important items submitted past deadline. You can control this by being certain that your to-do list is up-to-date, and that listed items are actually getting accomplished.

While you may sometimes tend toward surface analysis, you also display a very keen awareness of important details. This may come as a surprise to others, as they might assume that you only attend to the "big picture" items. You surprise them by contributing information about small details that may impact the project. This shows that, in spite of your easy-going style, you also do your homework.

YOUR STRENGTHS What You Bring to the Organization

You are likely to display your strength characteristics rather consistently. For the most part, these qualities tend to enhance your effectiveness within your organization. Work Style Preferences provide useful insights as you work in a job or as you work together on a team or family project. They are the talents and tendencies you bring to your job. Check the two most important strengths and the two most important work style tendencies and transfer them to the Summary of Your Style page.

Your Strengths:

- You're an excellent team player.
- You are able to communicate to large and small audiences, with equal poise and confidence.
- You demonstrate excellent people skills.
- You demonstrate excellent verbal skills.
- You are able to generate enthusiasm in others.
- You bring optimism to the team.
- You supply a positive sense of humor.

Your Work Style Tendencies That You Bring to the Job:

- You tend not to force your own ideas on others with edicts, but rather by offering considered suggestions.
- You tend to be an excellent "teacher" to peers on the team, at all levels of the organization.
- You meet new people easily and prefer networking with others rather than working in solitary conditions.
- At work, you tend to have a "long fuse," and are not easily angered, although you may take some of the anger home to vent.
- You show a high degree of persistence in working on projects, especially over the long haul.
- Your empathetic nature and sensitivity toward people may lead others to seek you out as a coach or counselor, or ask to assist them with a personal or team problem.
- On the job, you have a strong need to be patient, polite, and create an environment of good-will for internal and external stakeholders.

Your Motivations (Wants) and Needs

What motivates you? People are motivated by what they want? What do you really want? Our behaviors are also driven by our needs. Each style has different needs. If one person is stressed out, they may need quiet time alone; another may need social time around a lot of people. Each is different and simply meeting their needs. The more fully our needs are met, the easier it is to perform at an optimal level. Check the two most important motivators (wants) and the two most important needs and transfer them to the Summary of Your Style page.

You Tend to Be Motivated By:

- A work culture that is supportive of family activities and commitments.
- Projects and assignments that provide interpersonal contact, and an opportunity to help both internal and external stakeholders.
- Identification with the organization, team, and others with whom a spirit of work responsibility has been established.
- Evidence that a new process has been successful in similar applications.
- A supervisor, manager, or board who practices a democratic leadership process.
- Acceptance as a positive and supportive member of the organization and team.
- Flexibility to circulate and talk with a variety of people.

People With Patterns Like You Tend to Need:

- To have confidence in the project, product, goals, and leadership.
- Clear and specific job descriptions and role responsibilities.
- An increased sense of urgency to get things done expediently.
- To maintain communication on work tasks or projects, and to reduce the amount of off-the-subject commentary and socializing.
- Support with organization and project details, especially when there is a tight deadline.
- Increased organizational skills to reduce the potential for clutter and confusion.
- Better organization skills and better record-keeping.

YOUR MOTIVATIONS Ideal Work Environment

Everybody is motivated...however; they are motivated for their own reasons, not somebody else's reasons. By understanding your motivations, you can create an environment where you are most likely to be self-motivated. Check the two most important environment factors and transfer them to the Summary of Your Style page.

You Tend to Be Most Effective In Environments That Provide:

- Specialized assignments that also involve working and communicating with a variety of people.
- A work culture that takes pride in the systems, processes, and people working behind the scenes.
- Support and appreciation of your individual efforts.
- A participatory manager or board with whom a democratic relationship has been established.
- A work culture that allows for your natural interest in helping others learn and grow professionally.
- A favorable working climate containing positive attitudes and optimistic spirit.
- A balance between some stable, predictable work activities and some variety and change on a regular basis.

The I's Behavior and Needs Under Stress

Under Stress You May Appear:

- Inconsistent
- Superficial
- Overeager
- Wasteful of time
- Impulsive

Under Stress You Need:

- Action and interaction
- Prestige
- A quick pace for stimulation and excitement

Your Typical Behaviors in Conflict:

- I's are quite uncomfortable with conflict, aggression and anger. I's do whatever they can to avoid them. If possible, I's may physically avoid an environment filled with conflict or anger. If that is not possible, I's will probably seek to use their natural humor and story-telling ability to reduce the level of tension. If neither approach works, I's may attempt to ignore the conflict. Given their strong focus on relationships, however, this tactic is rarely successful.
- I's may experience a desire to get even if someone thwarts a major component of their personal agenda; however, they are not very likely to follow through. I's may choose to overlook the matter in order to preserve the relationship or they may simply lash out in anger.
- Their anger is generally a response to a personal attack on them or, possibly, the failure of someone to support them when they were really counting on that person's support. Of course I's may interpret a comment intended to refer to a task-related problem as a personal attack, especially if it concerns their contribution to the problem.

Strategies to Reduce Conflict and Increase Harmony:

- Recognize that I's can never resolve a conflict by avoiding it. Risk damaging a relationship or losing someone's approval by stating their feelings and clarifying their expectations. Be sure, of course, to listen attentively to the responses of others.
- I's have a tendency to "think out loud." Others may take these "brainstorming" ideas as actual commitments and become upset when those "commitments" are not completed. So, let others know in advance when you are only exploring ideas and options and not committing to actions.
- Be sure to fulfill all of your commitments. If you will be unable to keep a commitment or meet a deadline, inform the people involved as soon as possible. Do not assume that others will automatically step in to cover for you.

Communication Tips and Plans for Others

The following suggestions can help others who interact with you understand and be aware of your communication preferences. To use this information effectively, share it with others and also discuss their preferences.

Check the two most important ideas when others communicate with you (do's & don'ts) and transfer them to the Summary of Your Style page.

When Communicating with Kara, DO:

- Provide testimonials from people she sees as important and prominent.
- Join in with some name-dropping, talk positively about people and their goals.
- Be engaging, stimulating, and fast-paced.
- Be certain to specify instructions for continuing action.
- Plan some extra time in your schedule for talking, relating, and socializing with her.
- Provide immediate incentives for her willingness to help on the project.
- Be certain to conclude the communication with modes of action and specific instructions for the next step.

When Communicating with Kara, DON'T:

- Get bogged down in facts, figures, or abstractions.
- Be impersonal or judgmental.
- Be overly task-oriented.
- Talk down to her.
- Stick too rigidly to the agenda.
- Leave decisions hanging in the air. Be certain all decision points have reached closure and result in plans for action.
- Let the discussion with her get caught in dreams too much, otherwise you'll lose time.

Communication Plan with the DOMINANT Style

CHARACTERISTICS:

SO YOU...

Concerned with being #1	Show them how to win, new opportunities
Think logically	Display reasoning
Want facts and highlights	Provide concise data
Strive for results	Agree on goal and boundaries, the support or get out of their way
Like personal choices	Allow them to "do their thing," within limits
Like changes	Vary routine
Prefer to delegate	Look for opportunities to modify their workload focus
Want others to notice accomplishments	Compliment them on what they've done
Need to be in charge	Let them take the lead, when appropriate, but give them parameters
Tendency towards conflict	If necessary, argue with conviction on points of disagreement, backed up with facts; don't argue on a "personality" basis

Communication Plan with the INFLUENCING Style

CHARACTERISTICS

SO YOU...

Concerned with approval and appearances	Show them that you admire and like them
Seek enthusiastic people and situations	Behave optimistically and provide upbeat setting
Think emotionally	Support their feelings when possible
Want to know the general expectations	Avoid involved details, focus on the "big picture"
Need involvement and people contact	Interact and participate with them
Like changes and innovations	Vary the routine; avoid requiring long-term repetition by them
Want others to notice THEM	Compliment them personally and often
Often need help getting organized	Do it together
Look for action and stimulation	Keep up a fast, lively, pace
Surround themselves with optimism	Support their ideas and don't poke holes in their dreams; show them your positive side
Want feedback that they "look good"	Mention their accomplishments, progress and your other genuine appreciation

Communication Plan with the STEADY Style

CHARACTERISTICS	SO YOU...
Concerned with stability	Show how your idea minimizes risk
Think logically	Show reasoning
Want documentation and facts	Provide data and proof
Like personal involvement	Demonstrate your interest in them
Need to know step-by-step sequence	Provide outline and/or one-two-three instructions as you personally "walk them through"
Want others to notice their patient perseverance	Compliment them for their steady follow-through
Avoid risks and changes	Give them personal assurances
Dislike conflict	Act non-aggressively, focus on common interest or needed support
Accommodate others	Allow them to provide service or support for others
Look for calmness and peace	Provide a relaxing, friendly atmosphere
Enjoy teamwork	Provide them with a cooperative group
Want sincere feedback that they're appreciated	Acknowledge their easygoing manner and helpful efforts, when appropriate

Communication Plan with the CONSCIENTIOUS Style

CHARACTERISTICS	SO YOU...
Concerned with aggressive approaches	Approach them in an indirect, nonthreatening way
Think logically	Show your reasoning
Seek data	Give data to them in writing
Need to know the process	Provide explanations and rationale
Utilize caution	Allow them to think, inquire and check before they make decisions
Prefer to do things themselves	When delegating, let them check procedures, and other progress and performance before they make decisions
Want others to notice their accuracy	Compliment them on their thoroughness and correctness when appropriate
Gravitate toward quality control	Let them assess and be involved in the process when possible
Avoid conflict	Tactfully ask for clarification and assistance you may need
Need to be right	Allow them time to find the best or "correct" answer, within available limits
Like to contemplate	Tell them "why" and "how"

Potential Areas for Improvement

Everyone has some possible struggles, limitations or weaknesses. Oftentimes, it's simply an overextension of your strengths which may become a weakness. For example, a High D's directness may be a strength in certain environments, but when overextended they may tend to become bossy.

Check the two most important areas you are committed to improve upon and transfer them to the Summary of Your Style page.

Potential Areas for Improvement:

- You may tend to promise a bit more than you can deliver, then enlist the help of others to ensure timely delivery.
- You could use help in building time-management skills.
- Your decisions may sometimes be based on superficial information. You may need to dig deeper before coming to a conclusion.
- You may be overly optimistic in your ability to persuade or manage others.
- You may be easily distracted, sometimes finding it hard to stay on point in meetings, projects, or presentations.
- You may be a selective listener, hearing only what you want to hear.
- You may tend to react on impulse as opposed to thinking things through.

WORD SKETCH Adapted Style

DISC is an observable “needs-motivated” instrument based on the idea that emotions and behaviors are neither “good” nor “bad.” Rather, behaviors reveal the needs that motivate that behavior. Therefore, once we can accurately observe one’s actions, it is easier to “read” and anticipate their likely motivators and needs. This allows us to predict what will and will not please them which makes for better relationships and a more harmonious and productive workplace! This chart shows your ADAPTED DISC Graph as a “Word Sketch.” Use it with examples to describe why you do what you do and what’s important to you when it comes to (D)ominance of Problems, (I)nfluence of other People, (S)teadiness of Pace, or (C)ompliance to Procedures and Rules. Share more about the specific needs (now maybe habits) that drive you in each area of FOCUS. Is your DISC point at levels 1 and 2? Then your emotions and needs are the opposite of those whose graph is at Levels 5 and 6 in that area.

DISCstyles eGraphs for Kara Fabry

Your Adapted Style indicates you tend to use the behavioral traits of the Isd style(s) in your selected Family focus. Your Natural Style indicates that you naturally tend to use the behavioral traits of the I style(s).

Your Adapted Style is your graph displayed on the left. It is your perception of the behavioral tendencies you think you should use in your selected focus (work, social or family). This graph may change when you change roles or situations. The graph on the right is your Natural Style and indicates the intensity of your instinctive behaviors and motivators. It is often a better indicator of the “real you” and your “knee jerk”, instinctive behaviors. This is how you act when you feel comfortable in your home environment and are not attempting to impress. It is also what shows up in stressful situations. This graph tends to be fairly consistent, even in different environments.

Pattern: Isd (4641)
Focus: Family

Pattern: I (3633)

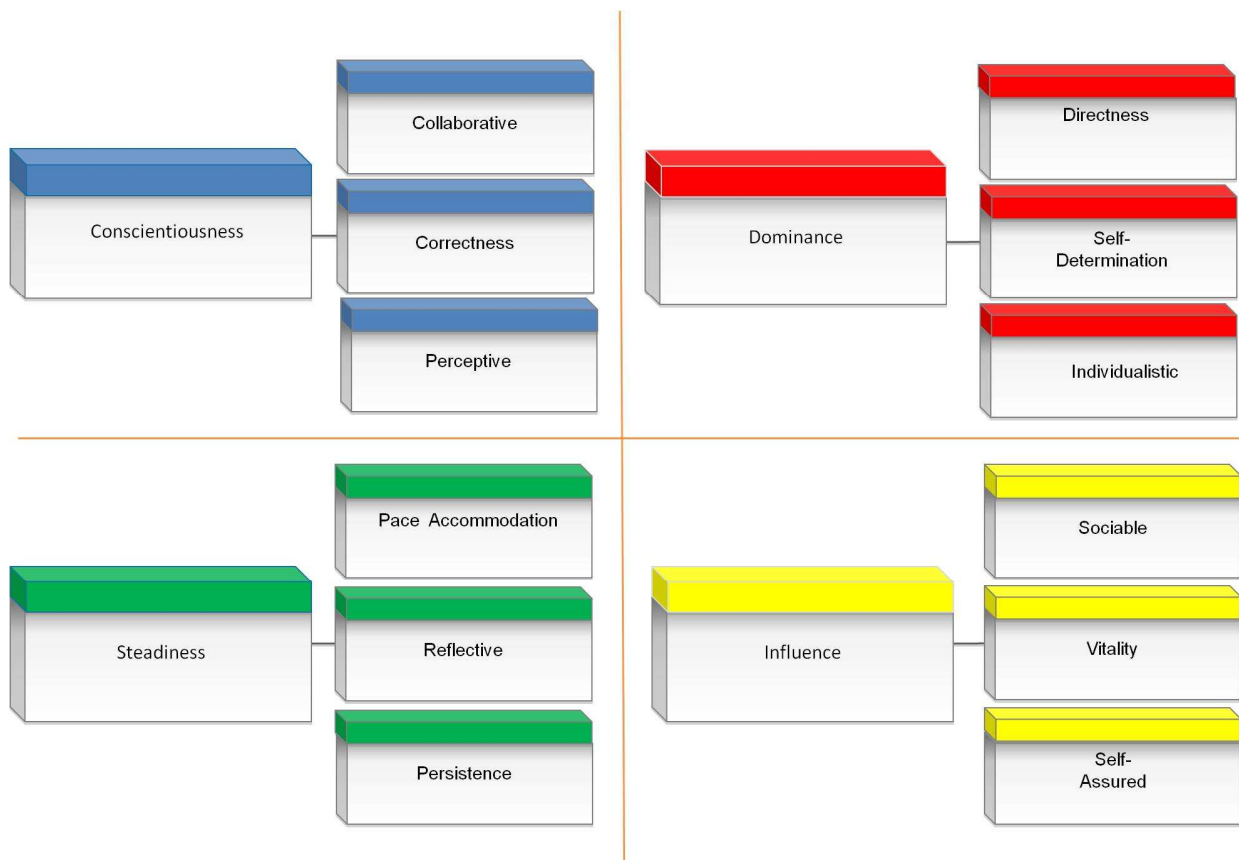

NOTE: Your results graphs will appear on a smaller scale throughout the report for your quick reference.

If the two bars are similar, it means that you tend to use your same natural behaviors in that environment. If your Adapted Style is different from your Natural Style, this may cause stress if done over a long period of time. You are then using behaviors that are not as comfortable or natural for you.

The four-digit numbers (under the graphs) represent your segment numbers in DISC order and dictate the adjectives highlighted on the Word Sketch pages.

The higher or lower each D, I, S, C point is on your graphs, the greater or lesser your needs-motivated behavior impacts your results at work and others around you. Once aware, you can adapt your style. Can you change? Of course! You do it every day depending on your situations. However, permanent behavioral change comes only with awareness and practice. Study and practice using the Behavioral Adaptability Charts in this report to gain behavioral flexibility. For further questions or personal coaching, contact your consultant.

The 12 Integrated DISC Style Relationships

For a more complete understanding of a person's overall behavior style, you can view how each of the primary (4) four DISC factors interact to produce (12) twelve integrated behaviors.

When comparing each of the (4) four basic DISC factors with the others, a group of (12) twelve factors of individual behaviors can be identified. Each person will display some of these factors more strongly than the others.

Each of the (12) twelve factors has been assigned a specific descriptor(s) to help you naturally associate the factor to a specific behavior. The ability to identify and measure the relative interaction of the (12) twelve factors represents a dramatic improvement in the use and application of DISC to better understand human workplace behavior.

We can measure the strength of a factor in a person's overall behavioral style by viewing the intensity score. Intensity is a measurement of the relative contribution of a specific factor to a person's observable natural behaviors that are most often displayed in most situations.

The (5) five intensity levels range from Low (absent in most situations) thru High (clearly displayed in most situations). This integrated behavioral view represents an improvement that contributes to the overall understanding of human behavior. Behaviors define how we deliver our thinking into the world.

We recommend you add this powerful new view to your tool kit and use it to assist you in understanding why and how people shape their communications and connections with the other people in their life.

This list of (12) twelve Integrated DISC relationships reveals how the (4) four Primary DISC behaviors combine and work together to create the socialized behaviors others see and experience. The Length of the black bar shows the relative influence of the DISC factors in someone's overall observable behavioral style.

1. Self-Assured Behavior (I/C) [High Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

The Self-Assured score measures the intensity of the relationship between projecting social confidence in a variety of social situations in light of the attention paid to established social boundaries, rules and guidelines. High scores in this factor can sometimes lead to over confidence, willingness to improvise and take spontaneous actions rather than preparing in advance. Low scores reflect a cautious and conscientious approach to taking action based on the evidence contained in the relevant data.

2. Vitality Behavior (I/S) [High Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

The Vitality score measures the intensity of the relationship between using an outwardly expressive style when interacting with people and the amount of energy expended to urgently move matters forward. High scores reflect a freewheeling, confident and engaging style that will likely be interested in new ideas and topics and the outgoing demonstration of that interest may be a source of influence on others. Low scores reflect thoughtfulness and great care in crafting words and actions to support steady progress towards a goal.

3. Sociable Behavior (I/D) [High Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

The Sociable score measures the intensity of the relationship between the person's outgoing verbal and non-verbal behaviors and their lack of directness. It reflects the degree of willingness to accommodate, support and oblige others. It also identifies the interest in assisting others to succeed and achieve their goals. High scores reflect an emphasis on social interaction rather than routine tasks. Low scores reflect a willingness to make difficult decisions, remain firm in supporting those choices energized by a focus on achieving results.

4. Individualistic Behavior (D/C) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

The Individualistic score reflects the intensity of the assertive and independent approach toward tackling problems, challenges and opportunities while maintaining freedom from controls. High scores will not likely be deterred by potential restraints or established procedures as they pursue their goals and objectives. Low scores favor a strong adherence to policy and conventional practices.

5. Self-Determination (D/S) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

The Self Determination score measures the intensity of the results oriented drive supported by an emphasis on urgency and action. This style combines the drive of a self-starter with a clear need to take actions that address problems, challenges and opportunities. High scores maintain consistent progress toward their goal(s) with impatience toward those who do not keep pace with their personal timetable. Low scores would not exhibit high urgency and will take time to carefully consider their plans and actions before they act.

6. Persistence Behavior (S/C) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

The Persistence score measures the intensity for displaying predictable patterns that stay on task and support current procedures and processes in light of the need for correctness of action, accuracy of information and thoroughness of preparation. High scores will place a greater emphasis on group and team support and reflect a style that favors careful planning. Low scores reflect a need to develop and support established guidelines and standards.

7. Perceptive Behavior (C/S) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

The Perceptive score measures the desire to operate within established structure, procedures, systems and rules in light of the degree of urgency required to address immediate problems, challenges and opportunities. It is a measure of a person's awareness of their current circumstances. High scores reflect a desire to strive for fail-safe environments reflecting the accuracy of your facts and thoroughness of your preparation. Low Scores suggest a greater focus on steadiness and supporting current procedures and processes.

8. Pace and Accommodation Behavior (S/D) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

The Pace and Accommodation score measures the intensity of the capacity to work at a steady and slower pace in light of the willingness to tolerate difficult and unfamiliar circumstances. High scores will reflect the capacity to consider and support alternative solutions when working with others. Low Scores reflect far less accommodation amplified by a higher sense of urgency and "results now" focus.

9. Collaborative Behavior (C/D) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

The Collaborative score reflects the intensity for using structure, established procedures, systems and rules to guide their work in light of the need to get things done, achieve results and move forward. This style seeks to avoid confrontation and will work toward finding solutions that are supported by others and work within the established guidelines. High Scores favor a strong need to comply with standards and adherence to policies and conventional practices. Low Scores suggest a need to control events in order to more freely make progress without being constrained by established guidelines and policies.

10. Directness (D/I) [Low Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

The Directness score measures the intensity for using a direct, straight line approach to accelerate the achievement of results. It reflects a capacity to prioritize tasks while subordinating a relationship focus. High scores suggest a willingness to make difficult decisions and remain firm in supporting those choices. Low scores reflect an emphasis on "humanizing" directness and energizing social interaction.

11. Reflective Behavior (S/I) [Low Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

The Reflective score measures the intensity of the person's degree of care in crafting their words and actions in light of the need to expressively engage and interact with others. This behavior measures the approach to logic, data and factual analysis and it measures the desire to take some time to carefully consider plans and actions prior to implementation. High scores reflect great care and thoughtfulness in creating words and taking actions. Low Scores reflect a freewheeling and confident belief that most if not all social interactions can be handled on the fly.

12. Correctness Behavior (C/I) [Low Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

The Correctness behavior measures the need to operate within established structure, procedure, systems and rules in light of the need for contact with people expressed by establishing, retaining and supporting personal relationships. High Scores suggest reliance upon logical factual and established data and protocols. Low Scores suggest following less established protocols and considering more emotional and persuasive influence from others.

Intensity Scoring Legend – DISC Style intensity is a measure of how you will likely display the specific behavior when interacting and communicating with others in most situations

- Low Intensity - Low Intensity scores indicate the ABSENCE of this behavior in MOST situations.
- Low Moderate - Low Moderate Intensity scores are only SOMETIMES observable in SOME situations.
- Moderate Intensity - Moderate Intensity scores do not mean "mild." Moderate means the behavior is flexible and may or may not become observable based upon the requirements of the specific situation.
- High Moderate - High Moderate Intensity scores are frequently observable in many situations.
- High Intensity - High Intensity scores will be clearly observable, displayed more often and seen in most situations.

Behavioral Pattern View

The BPV has eight behavioral zones. Each zone identifies a different combination of behavioral traits. The peripheral descriptors describe how others typically see individuals with your style. Plots on the outer edges of the diamond identify that one factor (DISC) of your style will dominate the other three. As you move towards the center of the diamond two and eventually three traits combine to moderate the intensity of your style descriptors within a specific behavioral zone.

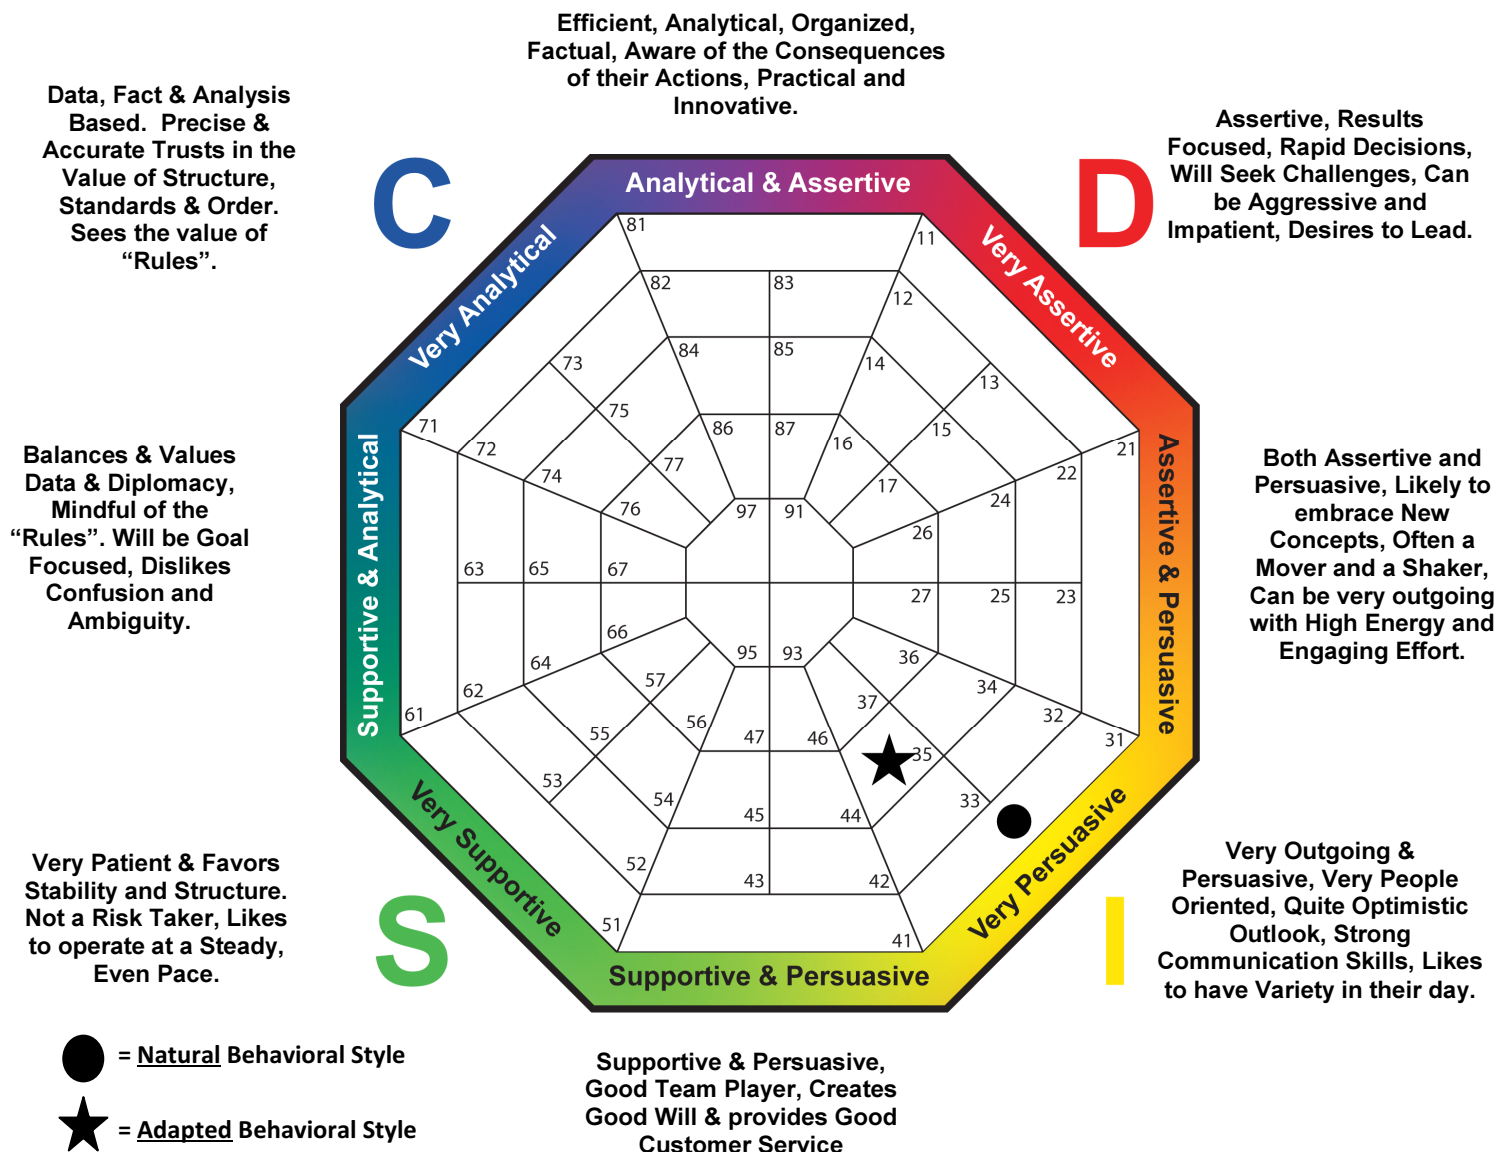

THE SCORING LEGEND

D = Dominance: How you deal with Problems

I = Influence/Extroversion: How you deal with Other People

S = Steadiness/Patience: How you deal with your Activity Level

C = Conscientious/Compliance/Structure: How you deal with the "Organization's Rules" as well as the focus on details, accuracy and precision

PART II Application of DISC Styles

Understanding your own behavioral style is just the first step to enhancing relationships. All the knowledge in the world doesn't mean much if you don't know how to apply it in real life situations. That's what the rest of this report is all about.

To really begin to use the power of behavioral styles, you also need to know how to apply the information to people and situations. Remember, people want to be treated according to their behavioral style, not yours!

THIS APPLICATION SECTION INCLUDES:

- Overview of the Four Basic DISCstyles
- How to Identify Another Person's Behavioral Style
- What is Behavioral Adaptability
- How to Modify Your Style
- Tension Among the Styles
- How to Adapt to the Different Behavioral Styles

This section will help you understand how to be more effective in relationships and situations. Good relationships can get better and challenging relationships may become good.

After reviewing the information, select a relationship in which things have not gone as smoothly as you would like. Make a commitment to at least take the time to gain an understanding of the other person's behavioral style and take a few steps to adapt your behavior to improve the relationship. Here's how to do it:

1 Identify the behavioral style of the other person using the How to Identify Another Person's Behavioral Style section. You can read about their style in Overview of the Four Basic DISCstyles. The section on What Is Behavioral Adaptability gives you an in-depth insight into what adaptability is, what it is not, and why it's so important to all your interpersonal relationships.

2 Once you know their style and preferences for directness and/or openness, you can use the How to Modify Your Directness and Openness section to adjust these areas when relating to this person. You will be amazed at the difference.

3 To further understand the tension that may exist in the relationship, you can refer to the Tension Among the Styles section and complete the Tension Among the Styles Worksheet. Being aware of the differences in preference in pace and priority, and modifying accordingly, can make a big difference in those tension-filled relationships.

4 And finally, the last section, How to Adapt to the Different Behavioral Styles, will give you suggestions when dealing with each of the four basic styles.

Overview of the Four Basic DISCstyles

Below is a chart to help you understand some of the characteristics of each of the Four Basic DISC Styles, so you can interact with each style more effectively. Although behavioral style is only a partial description of personality, it is quite useful in describing how a person behaves, and is perceived in personal, social and work situations.

	HIGH DOMINANT STYLE	HIGH INFLUENCING STYLE	HIGH STEADY STYLE	HIGH CONSCIENTIOUS STYLE
PACE	Fast/Decisive	Fast/spontaneous	Slower/Relaxed	Slower/Systematic
PRIORITY	Goal	People	Relationship	Task
SEEKS	Productivity Control	Participation Applause	Acceptance	Accuracy Precision
STRENGTHS	Administration Leadership Pioneering	Persuading Motivating Entertaining	Listening Teamwork Follow-through	Planning Systemizing Orchestration
GROWTH AREAS	Impatient Insensitive to others Poor listener	Inattentive to detail Short attention span Low follow-through	Oversensitive Slows to begin action Lacks global perspective	Perfectionist Critical Unresponsive
FEARS	Being taken advantage of	Loss of social recognition	Sudden changes Instability	Personal criticism of their work efforts
IRRITATIONS	Inefficiency Indecision	Routines Complexity	Insensitivity Impatience	Disorganization Impropriety
UNDER STRESS MAY BECOME	Dictatorial Critical	Sarcastic Superficial	Submissive Indecisive	Withdrawn Headstrong
GAINS SECURITY THROUGH	Control Leadership	Playfulness Others' approval	Friendship Cooperation	Preparation Thoroughness
MEASURES PERSONAL WORTH BY	Impact or results Track records and products	Acknowledgments Applause Compliments	Compatibility with others Depth of contribution	Precision Accuracy Quality of results
WORKPLACE	Efficient Busy Structured	Interacting Busy Personal	Friendly Functional Personal	Formal Functional Structured

How to Identify Another Person's Behavioral Style

How do you quickly and accurately identify each of the four behavioral styles in order to practice adaptability? You do this by focusing on two areas of behavior — DIRECTNESS and OPENNESS. So, to quickly identify the styles of other people ask the questions on the following page.

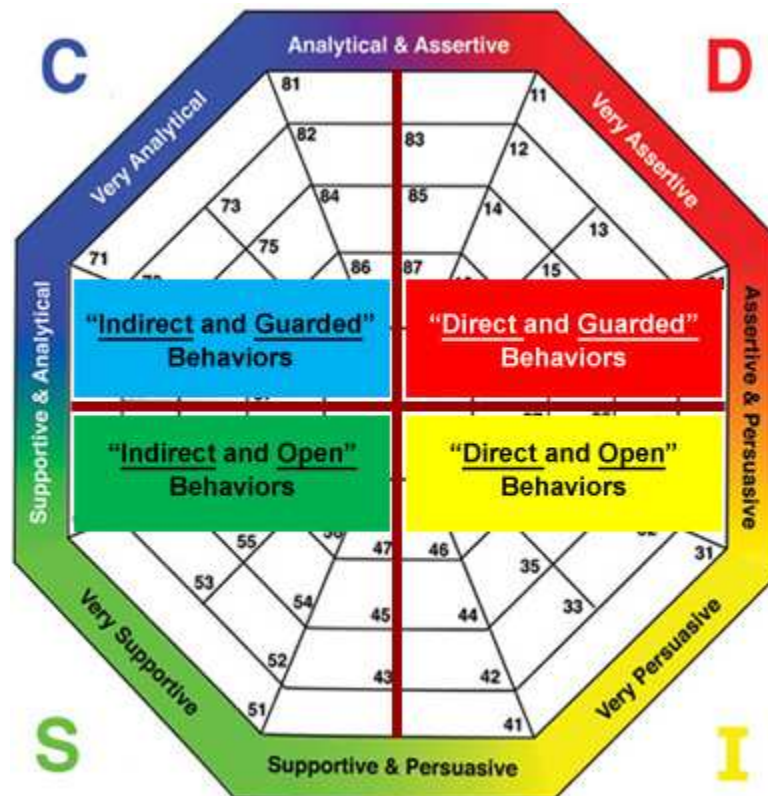

When you combine both scales, you create each of the four different behavioral styles. Individuals who exhibit guarded and direct behaviors are Dominance Styles; direct and open behaviors are Influence Styles; open and indirect behaviors are Steadiness Styles; and indirect and guarded behaviors are Conscientious Styles.

The Whole Picture

Recognizing another person's Behavioral Style - 2 Power Questions:

1. Are they DIRECT or INDIRECT in their communications?
(Directness is the 1st. Predictor of Style. Direct plot on the right, Indirect on the Left).
2. Are they GUARDED or OPEN in their communications?
(Openness is the 2nd. Predictor of Style. Open plot on the Bottom, Guarded on the Top).

When we integrate both the natural tendency to be either DIRECT or INDIRECT with the natural tendency to be either GUARDED or OPEN it forms the foundation and the basis for plotting each of the four different behavioral styles:

D = Individuals who typically exhibit direct & guarded behaviors define the Dominant Styles

I = Individuals who exhibit direct & open behaviors define the Influence/Extroverted Styles.

S = Individuals who exhibit indirect & open behaviors define the Steadiness/Patient Styles.

C = Individuals who exhibit indirect & guarded behaviors define the Conscientious/Compliant Styles.

The behavioral intensity of directness or indirectness and being open or guarded is shown in the quadrant you plot. The plots towards the edge of the diamond reflect MORE INTENSITY and those plotting closer to the center reflect a MORE MODERATE INTENSITY of both characteristics.

What is Behavioral Adaptability?

Adaptability is your willingness and ability to adjust your approach or strategy based on the particular needs of the situation or relationship at a particular time. It's something applied more to yourself (to your patterns, attitudes and habits) than to others.

No one style is naturally more adaptable than another. For any situation, the strategic adjustments that each style needs to make will vary. The decision to employ specific adaptability techniques is made on a case-by-case basis: you can choose to be adaptable with one person, and not so with others. You can choose to be quite adaptable with one person today and less adaptable with that same individual tomorrow. Adaptability concerns the way you manage your own behaviors.

You practice adaptability each time you slow down for a C or S style; or when you move a bit faster for the D or I styles. It occurs when the D or C styles take the time to build the relationship with an S or I style; or when the I or S styles focus on facts or get right to the point with D or C styles. It means adjusting your own behavior to make other people feel more at ease with you and the situation

Adaptability does not mean "imitation" of the other person's style. It does mean adjusting your openness, directness, pace, and priority in the direction of the other person's preference, while maintaining your own identity.

Adaptability is important to all successful relationships. People often adopt a different style in their professional lives than they do in their social and personal lives. We tend to be more adaptable at work with people we know less. We tend to be less adaptable at home and with people we know better.

Adaptability at its extreme could make you appear wishy-washy and two-faced. A person who maintains high adaptability in all situations may not be able to avoid stress and inefficiency. There is also the danger of developing tension from the stress of behaving in a "foreign" style. Usually, this is temporary and may be worth it if you gain rapport with others. At the other end of the continuum, no adaptability would cause others to view someone as rigid and uncompromising because they insist on behaving according to their own natural pace and priority.

Effectively adaptable people meet other people's needs and their own. Through practice, they are able to achieve a balance: strategically managing their adaptability by recognizing when a modest compromise is appropriate, or, when the nature of the situation calls for them to totally adapt to the other person's behavioral style, they do so. Adaptable people know how to negotiate relationships in a way that allows everyone to win. They are tactful, reasonable, understanding, and non-judgmental.

Your adaptability level influences how others judge their relationship with you. Raise your adaptability level and trust and credibility go up; lower your adaptability level and trust and credibility go down. Adaptability enables you to interact more productively with difficult people and helps you to avoid or manage tense situations. With adaptability you can treat other people the way THEY want to be treated.

How to Modify Your Directness and Openness

In some interpersonal situations, you will only be able to identify another person's directness or openness, but not both. In these situations, you need to know how to practice adaptability, one behavioral dimension at a time. With that in mind, let's look at what you can do to modify YOUR level of Directness or Openness before looking at specific guidelines for being more adaptable with each of the four styles.

DIRECTNESS

TO INCREASE

- Speak, move and make decisions at a faster pace
- Initiate conversation and decisions
- Give recommendations
- Use direct statements rather than roundabout questions
- Use a strong, confident voice
- Challenge and tactfully disagree, when appropriate
- Face conflict openly, but don't clash with the person
- Increase your eye contact

TO DECREASE:

- Talk, walk and make decisions more slowly
- Seek and acknowledge others' opinions
- Share decision-making
- Be more mellow
- Do not interrupt
- When talking, provide pauses to give others a chance to speak
- Refrain from criticizing, challenging or acting pushy
- When disagreeing, choose words carefully

OPENNESS

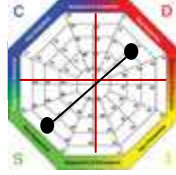

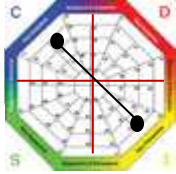

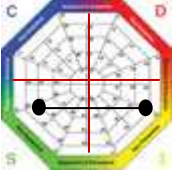

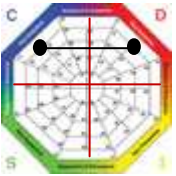

TO INCREASE

- Share feelings; show more emotion
- Respond to the expression of others' feelings
- Pay personal complements
- Take time to develop the relationship
- Use friendly language
- Communicate more; loosen up and stand closer
- Be willing to digress from the agenda

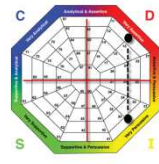

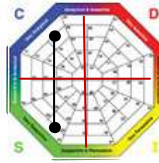

TO DECREASE:

- Get right to the task – the bottom line
- Maintain more of a logical, factual orientation
- Keep to the agenda
- Do not waste the other person's time
- Do not initiate physical contact
- Downplay your enthusiasm and body movement
- Use businesslike language

Tension Among the Styles

Potential Tensions/Disconnects	Plot Points Example
Double Tensions of Patience vs. Urgency AND People versus Task Pattern 1: The High S's preferred Patient & Slower Pace with a Primary Focus on People rather than on results and task can conflict with the High D's Sense of Urgency and a focus on Tasks and Results and Now.	 High S vs. High D (Lower Left vs. Upper Right Quadrant)
Double Tensions of Patience vs. Urgency AND People versus Task Pattern 2: The High C's lack of Urgency with a Primary Focus on Tasks/Results can conflict with the High I's higher Urgency with a Primary Focus on People vs. Results and Tasks.	 High C + High I (Upper Left vs. Lower Right Quadrant)

Tension Among the Styles

WORKSHEET

Everybody has a few tension-filled relationships. You can have the highest regard and/or loving feelings toward the person. It seems no matter what you do, your interactions are usually stressful. If this is behavior related, applying The Platinum Rule® - Treat others the way THEY want to be treated – may be helpful. Complete this worksheet to gain insights on how to improve the relationship. If you feel comfortable, you may discuss with the other person things you can do to ease the tension.

First, refer to the section on How to Identify Another Person's Style and determine their primary behavioral style. Then refer to the Tension Model to identify their pace and priority preferences. Next, see which preferences are different than yours and note the strategy you will take to modify your behavior. If both preferences are the same as yours, then determine where you will allow their needs to be placed above yours. For example, if you are a High I with fast-pace and people-oriented preferences and the other person is as well, you might let them have the center stage in times when it is not as important for you. A little give and take will go a long way.

How to Adapt to the DOMINANT Style

They're time-sensitive; so don't waste their time. Be organized and get to the point. Give them relevant information and options, with probabilities of success. Give them written details to read at their leisure — all on a single page.

The Dominant Styles are goal-oriented, so appeal to their sense of accomplishment. Stroke their egos by supporting their ideas and acknowledge their power and prestige. Let the D Style call the shots. If you disagree, argue with facts, not feelings. In groups, allow them to have their say because they are not the type who will take a back seat to others.

With the Dominant Style, in general, be efficient and competent.

AT WORK, HELP THEM TO...

- More realistically gauge risks
- Exercise more caution and deliberation before making decisions
- Follow pertinent rules, regulations, and expectations
- Recognize and solicit others' contributions
- Tell others the reasons for decisions
- Cultivate more attention/responsiveness to emotions

SALES AND SERVICE

- Plan to be prepared, organized, fast-paced, and always to the point
- Meet them in a professional and businesslike manner
- Learn and study their goals and objectives – what they want to accomplish, how they currently are motivated to do things, and what they would like to change
- Suggest solutions with clearly defined and agreed upon consequences as well as rewards that relate specifically to their goals
- Get to the point
- Provide options and let them make the decision, when possible

IN SOCIAL SETTINGS...

- Let them know that you don't intend to waste their time
- Convey openness and acceptance of them
- Listen to their suggestions
- Summarize their achievements and accomplishments
- Give them your time and undivided attention
- Appreciate and acknowledge them when possible

How to Adapt to the INFLUENCING Style

The Influencing Styles thrive on personal recognition, so pour it on sincerely. Support their ideas, goals, opinions, and dreams. Try not to argue with their pie-in-the-sky visions; get excited about them.

The I Styles are social-butterflies, so be ready to flutter around with them. A strong presence, stimulating and entertaining conversation, jokes, and liveliness will win them over. They are people-oriented, so give them time to socialize. Avoid rushing into tasks.

With the Influencing Styles, in general, be interested in them.

AT WORK, HELP THEM TO...

- Prioritize and organize
- See tasks through to completion
- View people and tasks more objectively
- Avoid overuse of giving and taking advice
- Write things down

SALES AND SERVICE

- Show that you're interested in them, let them talk, and allow your animation and enthusiasm to emerge
- Take the initiative by introducing yourself in a friendly and informal manner and be open to new topics that seem to interest them
- Support their dreams and goals
- Illustrate your ideas with stories and emotional descriptions that they can relate to their goals or interests
- Clearly summarize details and direct these toward mutually agreeable objectives and action steps
- Provide incentives to encourage quicker decisions
- Give them testimonials

IN SOCIAL SETTINGS...

- Focus on a positive, upbeat, warm approach
- Listen to their personal feelings and experiences
- Respond openly and congenially
- Avoid negative or messy problem discussions
- Make suggestions that allow them to look good
- Don't require much follow-up, detail or long-term commitments
- Give them your attention, time and presence

How to Adapt to the STEADY Style

They are relationship-oriented and want warm and fuzzy relationships, so take things slow, earn their trust, support their feelings, and show sincere interest. Talk in terms of feelings, not facts. The S Styles don't want to ruffle feathers. They want to be assured that everyone will approve of them and their decisions. Give them time to solicit co-workers' opinions. Never back a Steady Style into a corner. It is far more effective to apply warmth to get this chicken out of its egg than to crack the shell with a hammer.

With the Steady Style, in general, be non-threatening and sincere.

AT WORK, HELP THEM TO...

- Utilize shortcuts and discard unnecessary steps
- Track their growth
- Avoid doing things the same way
- Realize there is more than one approach to tasks
- Become more open to some risks and changes
- Feel sincerely appreciated
- Speak up and voice their thoughts and feelings
- Modify their tendency to automatically do what others tell them
- Get and accept credit and praise, when appropriate

SALES AND SERVICE

- Get to know them more personally and approach them in a non-threatening, pleasant, and friendly, but professional way
- Develop trust, friendship, and credibility at a relatively slow pace
- Ask them to identify their own emotional needs as well as their task or business expectations
- Get them involved by focusing on the human element... that is, how something affects them and their relationships with others
- Avoid rushing them and give them personal, concrete assurances, when appropriate
- Communicate with them in a consistent manner on a regular basis

IN SOCIAL SETTINGS...

- Focus on a slower-paced, steady approach
- Avoid arguments and conflict
- Respond sensitively and sensibly
- Privately acknowledge them with specific, believable compliments
- Allow them to follow through on concrete tasks
- Show them step-by-step procedures
- Behave pleasantly and optimistically
- Give them stability and minimum of change

How to Adapt to the CONSCIENTIOUS Style

They are time-disciplined, so be sensitive to their schedules. They need details, so give them data. They are task-oriented; so don't expect to become their friend before working with them. Friendship may develop later, but, unlike the Influencing Styles, it is not a prerequisite.

Support the Conscientious Styles in their organized, thoughtful approach to problem solving. Be systematic, logical, well prepared and exact with them. Give them time to make decisions and work independently. Allow them to talk in detail. In work groups, do not expect the C Styles to be leaders or outspoken contributors, but do rely on them to conduct research, crunch numbers, and perform detailed footwork for the group. If appropriate, set guidelines and exact deadlines. The C Styles like to be complimented on their brainpower, so recognize their contributions accordingly.

With the C Styles, be thorough, well prepared, detail-oriented, business-like, and patient.

AT WORK, HELP THEM TO...

- Share their knowledge and expertise with others
- Stand up for themselves with the people they prefer to avoid
- Shoot for realistic deadlines and parameters
- View people and tasks less seriously and critically
- Balance their lives with both interaction and tasks
- Keep on course with tasks, less checking
- Maintain high expectations for high priority items, not everything

SALES AND SERVICE...

- Prepare so that you can answer as many of their questions as soon as possible
- Greet them cordially, but proceed quickly to the task; don't start with personal or social talk
- Hone your skills in practicality and logic
- Ask questions that reveal a clear direction and that fit into the overall scheme of things
- Document how and why something applies
- Give them time to think; avoid pushing them into a hasty decision
- Tell them both the pros and cons and the complete story
- Follow through and deliver what you promise

IN SOCIAL SETTINGS...

- Use a logical approach
- Listen to their concerns, reasoning, and suggestions
- Respond formally and politely
- Negative discussions are OK, so long as they aren't personally directed
- Privately acknowledge them about their thinking
- Focus on how pleased you are with their procedures
- Solicit their insights and suggestions
- Show them by what you do, not what you say

Building and Maintaining Rapport Throughout the Selling Cycle

There are five definable stages to most every buying cycle. Successfully guiding prospects through each phase will lead to positive outcomes for both of you.

1. Connecting: Understanding DISC styles will have an impact on the impression you make in the first few minutes of a meeting. In that short, precious time, you make or break the sale. In that time, your prospect sizes you up and determines if you are the type of person he or she would like to do business with.

The purpose of making contact with your prospect is to begin opening up lines of communication. Great listeners make the best salespeople... period. Master the skill of effective listening and every other aspect of your relationships will improve.

2. Exploring: The purpose of Exploring is to get an accurate picture of the customer's needs and what it will take to provide an effective solution. To do so, you need to listen to what the customer says as well as know how to ask the right questions to get the information you need.

Asking intelligent questions is a critical sales skill. It does not require asking many questions - just the right ones. Asking questions is similar to painting a picture. You start with a blank canvas and begin to fill in the background and rough in the picture with broad-brush strokes. Then you fill in the details using finer and finer strokes.

3. Collaborating: During this phase, you and your prospect collaborate to find a solution that meets the prospect's needs. It is a process of taking your prospect's ideas and combining them with your own ideas to arrive at a solution that makes sense to both of you. The give-and-take exchange can be thought of as an opportunity to "switch heads" with your prospect. Imagine saying this to your customer: "If you and I could switch heads, that is, if you could know what I know about my product and if I could know what you know about your business, we would both know exactly how to give you the best possible solution for your needs."

That's your goal - to come as close as possible to the perfect knowledge that would allow you to develop the ideal solution for your prospect. To achieve that goal, you need to exchange enough information to fully understand your client's business, industry, trends and challenges; and they have to know as much as possible about your products and services and how they can help them. As you propose a solution, relate it to the prospect's needs discovered in the Explore phase and explain how it will work in your prospect's environment.

4. Confirming: Gaining commitment flows naturally out of the Exploring and Collaborating stages for the DISC salesperson. If you did a thorough job during the first three stages of selling: Contacting, Exploring and Collaborating, the prospect should close.

The Confirming stage is a critical point in building a customer partnership. DISC salespeople do not use fancy closing techniques. You cannot work through all the stages of the sale and then, at the end, try to use a manipulative closing technique to clinch the deal. It doesn't make sense... and it most certainly doesn't work when you're trying to build long-term customer relationships rather than simply closing one-shot sales.

5. Assuring: A great weakness of most salespeople is the way they handle the Assuring phase of the sales process. Most salespeople stop with getting the sales commitment; they disappear from the customer's life, leaving service, installation, training and follow-up to others.

One "old-school" method of selling has an adage that the sale begins when the customer says "no." In direct contrast, the real job of selling starts when the customer says "yes."

Assuring customer satisfaction is a secret ingredient of extraordinary sales success. You will benefit two ways by assuring each customer. First, this assures repeat business. Almost all products have a life cycle and will be replaced or upgraded. Customers have a tendency to return to the salesperson who previously matched them with a product that met their needs and then provided excellent service and follow-up.

Secondly, satisfied customers are excellent sources of referrals. Customers talk. They talk about poor service and they talk about extraordinary service. When they get super service, they refer others to the salesperson who delivered on his or her promises.

Without repeat business and referrals, a salesperson must constantly prospect and cold-call new accounts. That is not the way most salespeople want to spend their lives... and it certainly is not the best way to be successful!

When you start the sales process, you have a chance to begin building a good customer relationship. However, it is only after the sale, when you make sure your customer is satisfied (preferably delighted!), that you really cement the relationship.

Phase 1: BUILDING RAPPORT DURING INITIAL CONTACT

Connecting with “C’s”

- “C’s” don’t care much about social interaction (beyond common courtesy and standard pleasantries), so get to the point.
- Avoid making small talk, except to initially establish your credibility.
- Speak slowly, calmly and economize on words.
- “C’s” are precision-oriented people who want to do their jobs in the best possible manner.
- Build your credibility by thinking with your head, not your emotions.
- Before meeting, provide them with a brief overview of the agenda and length of meeting, so they know what to expect.
- Show them logical proof from reliable sources that accurately document your quality, record of accomplishment, and value.
- “C’s” tend to be naturally suspicious of those who talk themselves up.

Connecting with “D’s”

- “D’s” want to know the bottom line.
- Just give them enough information to satisfy their need to know about overall performance.
- They do not want you to waste their time giving them a bolt-by-bolt description of your product, presenting a long list of testimonials from satisfied clients, or getting too chummy with them – always remember that they are Direct and Guarded.
- When you write, call, or meet a “D”, do it in a formal, businesslike manner. Get right to the point. Focus quickly on the task.
- Refer to bottom line results, increased efficiency, saved time, return on investment, profits, and so on. In other words, tell him what’s in it for him.
- If you plan to sell something or present a proposal to a “D”, take care to be well organized, time-conscious, efficient, and businesslike.
- They do not want to make friends with you; they want to get something out of you if they think you have something of value to offer.

Connecting with “S’s”

- “S’s” are Indirect and Open. However, keep the relationship businesslike until they warm up to you.
- They are concerned with maintaining stability; they want to know step-by-step procedures that are likely to meet their need for details and logical action plans.
- Organize your presentation: list specifics, show sequences, and provide data.
- Treat them with honesty, sincerity, and personal attentiveness.
- Listen patiently to their stories, ideas and answers.
- Express your appreciation for their steadiness, dependability, and cooperativeness.
- Present yourself to be non-threatening, pleasant, friendly, but still professional.
- Develop trust, credibility, and friendship at a relatively slow, informal pace.
- Communicate with them in a consistent manner on a regular basis... especially at the outset.

Connecting with “I’s”

- Remember that they are Direct and Open.
- When you meet an “I”, shake hands firmly, introduce yourself with confidence, and immediately show personal interest.
- Let him set the pace and direction of the conversation.
- Be an especially attentive listener with “I’s”.
- Give them positive feedback to let them know that you understand and can relate to their visions, ideas and feelings.
- Tell humorous or unusual stories about yourself, to win their heart.
- Allow them to feel comfortable by listening to their stories, even to the point of talking about topics that may stray from the subject.
- Since “I’s” typically enjoy talking about themselves, ask questions about them, but be prepared for lengthy answers. Plan to have as many meetings as necessary to build the relationship and gather information.

Phase 2: MAINTAINING RAPPORT IN THE EXPLORING STAGE

Exploring with “C’s”

- “C’s” don’t care much about social interaction (beyond common courtesy and standard pleasantries), so get to the point.
- “C’s” often like to answer questions that reveal their expertise, so they can be very good interviewees.
- As long as you ask logical, fact-oriented, relevant questions, they will enjoy speaking with you.
- Phrase your questions to help them give you the right information.
- Ask open and closed questions that investigate their knowledge, systems, objectives and objections.
- Make your own answers short and crisp.
- If you do not know the answer to something, do not fake it. Tell them you’ll get the answer for them by a certain time, and then do it.

Exploring with “D’s”

- To head off the “D’s” impatience before it surfaces, keep your conversations interesting by alternately asking questions and offering relevant information.
- “D’s” need to view the meeting as purposeful, so they want to understand where your questions are leading.
- When asking a “D” question, make them as practical and logical as possible. Aim questions at the heart of the issue and ask them in a straightforward manner.
- Only request information that is unavailable elsewhere.
- When gathering information, ask questions showing you have done your homework about their desired results and current efforts.
- Be sure to make queries that allow him to talk about his business goals.
- Gear your exploring toward saving D’s time and energy.

Exploring with “S’s”

- “S’s” can be excellent interviewees, so talk warmly and informally and ask gentle, open questions that draw them out (especially around sensitive areas).
- Show tact and sincerity in exploring their needs.
- If they do not have a good feeling about your product, company, or even you, they are not likely to take the chance of hurting your feelings by telling you so.
- They want to avoid confrontations, even minor ones. So “S’s” may tell you what they think you want to hear, rather than what they really think.
- They may not tell you about their dissatisfaction with your competitors. Even though this is exactly what you want to hear, the “S” may be hesitant about saying anything negative about them.
- Allow for plenty of time (possibly multiple meetings) for “S’s” to open up to you and reveal their innermost desires and pains.
- The more time you spend with an “S” exploring, the higher the odds you’ll be landing them as a customer.

Exploring with “I’s”

- “I’s” get bored quickly when they’re not talking about themselves.
- Strike a balance between listening to their life’s stories and gathering the information you need to be an effective sales consultant.
- When asking business questions, keep them brief. If you can, work these exploratory questions in with social questions.
- The better your relationship with an “I” is, the more willing he’ll be to cooperate and talk about the task at hand.
- “I’s” can be so open they may tell you their fondest hopes and aspirations. If you can demonstrate how your product or service can get them closer to their dreams, they may become so excited about your product—and you—that they’re likely to sell you and your products and services to everyone else in their organization.

Phase 3: MAINTAINING RAPPORT IN THE COLLABORATING STAGE

Collaborating with “C’s”

- Emphasize accuracy, value, quality and reliability.
- They dislike talk not backed up by evidence.
- Describe a process will produce the results they seek.
- Elicit specific feedback by asking, “So far, what are your reactions?” or “Do you have any questions that you’d like me to clear up?”
- Present your solution that shows them they’ll be correct in making the purchase.
- Base your claims on facts, specifications and data that relate specifically to their needs.
- “C’s” are cost-conscious; increase their perceived value with facts and ROI data.
- “C’s” are the likely to see the drawbacks, so point out the obvious negatives before they do. Let them assess the relative trade-offs when choosing between competing (yet imperfect) products or services

Collaborating with “D’s”

- Your presentation must be geared toward the “D’s” priorities.
- Gear your presentation toward how they can become more successful, save time, generate results, and make life easier and more efficient; you’ll get their attention.
- Zero in on the bottom line with quick benefit statements.
- They want you to do the analysis and lay it out for them to approve or reject.
- “D’s” like rapid, concise analyses of their needs and your solutions.
- “D’s” like being in control, so give them choices backed with enough data and analysis to allow them to make an intelligent decision.
- Then, be quiet and let them make their decision. If you speak or interrupt while they are buying, you will dramatically decrease the odds of making this sale.

Collaborating with “S’s”

- Show how your product or service will stabilize, simplify, or support the “S’s” procedures and relationships.
- Clearly define their roles and goals in your suggestions, and include specific expectations of them in your plan.
- Present new ideas in a non-threatening way.
- Provide them time to adjust to changes in operating procedures and relationships.
- When change becomes necessary, tell them why. Explain how long the changes will take and any interim alterations of the current conditions.
- Design your message to impart a sense of stability and security.
- “S’s” like to be shown the appropriate steps to follow, so share those with them.
- Involve them by asking their opinions and encourage them to give you feedback.

Collaborating with “I’s”

- Show how your product would increase the “I’s” prestige, image, or recognition.
- Talk about the favorable impact or consequences your suggestions will have in making their working relationships more enjoyable.
- Give them incentives for completing tasks by stressing how their contribution will benefit others and evoke positive responses from them.
- Presentations need impact for people with short attention spans, so involve as many senses as possible.
- Show them how your solution will save them effort and make them look good.
- Back up your claims with testimonials from well-known people or high-profile corporations.
- Name satisfied acquaintances they know and admire.
- Sprinkle in “visualizing future ownership” questions, such as: “If you were already running this software, how would you use it?”

Phase 4: MAINTAINING RAPPORT IN THE CONFIRMING STAGE

Confirming with “C’s”

- Emphasize accuracy, value, quality and reliability.
- Provide logical options with appropriate documentation and time to analyze their options.
- They’re uncomfortable with snap decisions and when they say they will think about it, they mean it!
- If pressured by people or excessive demands, they may use “I’ll think about it,” as a stalling tactic.
- “C’s” are educated, logical, comparative “shoppers.” Know your competition so you can point out your advantages relative to the competition in a factual, professional way. Mention your company’s strengths as you suggest questions they may want to ask your competitors that allows them to do a comparative cost-benefit analysis of the options and solutions.
- Be willing to explore the subject of a conditional, “pilot program” as a way of reducing their risk.

Confirming with “D’s”

- With “D’s”, you come right out and ask if they are interested. A “D” will often tell you “yes” or “no”.
- You can easily lose the attention and/or interest of a “D” by presenting your information too slowly or by spending too much time discussing minute details.
- When you draw up a commitment letter, don’t spend too much time on points the “D” may not care about.
- Present them with options and probable outcomes. “D’s” like to balance quality with cost considerations, so offer options with supporting evidence and leave the final decision to them.
- We have found that it is effective to present a “D” with two or three options. Provide a short summation of each option, along with your recommendation of each.
- While the “D” is reviewing your proposal, don’t interrupt them. The odds are high that they will find an option that appeals to them and closing the deal themselves.

Confirming with “S’s”

- “S’s” are slower, deductive decision makers who listen to the opinions of others and take the time to solicit those opinions before deciding. So, make a specific action plan and provide personal guidance, direction or assurance as required for pursuing the safest, most practical course to follow. Arm them with literature, case studies and any documentation available, because they’ll be “selling” your proposal to others within their organization.
- When you do reach agreement, carefully explore any potential areas of misunderstanding or dissatisfaction.
- “S’s” like guarantees that new actions will involve a minimum risk, so offer assurances and support.
- Try not to rush them, but do provide gentle, helpful nudges to help them decide (when needed).
- Involve them by personalizing the plan and showing how it will directly benefit them and others.
- When asking for a commitment, guide them toward a choice if they seem indecisive.

Confirming with “I’s”

- Show how your product would increase the “I’s” prestige, image, or recognition.
- Be open and ask, “Where do we go from here?” or “What’s our next step?”
- If they like something, they buy it on the spot (all other things being equal).
- You may have to slow them down because they also tend to overbuy and/or buy before weighing all the ramifications; behaviors that both of you may live to regret.
- “I’s” dislike paperwork and details so they are likely to hesitate, and even procrastinate, when it comes to spending the time required on a contract.
- Have a written agreement prepared due to their tendency to be unclear about procedures, responsibilities and expectations.
- Make sure that you agree on the specifics in writing or, later on, you can almost bet on some degree of misunderstanding and/or disappointment.

Phase 5: MAINTAINING RAPPORT IN THE ASSURING STAGE

Assuring "C's"

- Set a specific timetable for when and how you will measure success with the "C". Continue proving your reliability, quality and value.
- Make yourself available for follow-up on customer satisfaction and ask for specific feedback on the product or service performance record.
- If you have tips for improved usage or user shortcuts, email them to your "C" customers.
- You should also ask for their ideas and opinions for how to improve your products and/or services.
- When they offer you their suggestions, get back to them about how your company is incorporating their ideas into upgrades into future upgrades, revisions or new products.

Assuring "D's"

- "D's" usually do not look for personal relationships at work due to their focus on accomplishing tasks.
- With "D's," do not rely on past sales to ensure future purchases. Follow up to find out if they have any complaints or problems with your product. If they do have complaints, address them immediately.
- Impress upon your customer your intent to stand behind your product or service.
- Stress that you will follow-up without taking much of their time.
- You may also want to offer a money-back guarantee.
- Whatever the promise, make sure you deliver everything you offer!

Assuring "S's"

- Follow-up consistently with an "S".
- Give them your personal guarantee that you will remain in touch, keep things running smoothly, and be available on an "as needed" basis.
- "S's" like to think they have a special relationship with you; that you are more than just another business acquaintance; they prefer a continuing, predictable relationship.
- Give them your cell number, along with an invitation to call you any time with any concern. They will rarely use it, but will feel secure knowing it's available to them.
- They dislike one-time deals, so follow up to maintain your relationship.
- Impersonal, computerized follow-up is not very appealing to "S's", so continue building your relationship with low-key, personalized attention and assistance.

Assuring "I's"

- "I's" frequently buy before they're sold which may lead to buyers' remorse.
- "I's" can benefit from ongoing reminders that they have made the right decision.
- Reinforce their decision by giving plenty of assistance immediately after the sale.
- Be certain they actually use your product or they may get frustrated from incorrect usage and either put it away or return it for a refund.
- Since they mingle with so many people, you can even ask "I's" if they'd be willing to share their glowing testimonials about you and your product with others.
- If they are feeling smart for using your product or service, most "I's" will give you more referrals than the other three styles combined!

TAKING OWNERSHIP OF YOUR DESTINY

Imagine what would have happened if you had successfully applied the principles and practices of Platinum Rule Selling ten years ago... or even five years ago? Well, hundreds of thousands of people like you have already used these principles and experienced dramatic increases in sales volumes, more satisfaction in their dealings with customers and co-workers (family and friends, also!), and greater awareness of their own strengths and weaknesses. Many people report that they no longer feel like “just a salesperson”; they feel, behave and are treated like a trusted advisor. They have an increased ability to help people find solutions to their problems and are more adept at identifying new opportunities.

For you to also share in the pleasure from experiencing these benefits, we encourage you to get started this very minute. First, think about the goals you want to accomplish in the next year... the next month... the next week... even by the end of today! Develop a plan to meet those goals using The Platinum Rule – Do Unto Others as They Would Have You Do Unto Them - and the other principles that make up the DISC Selling Strategies.

Accept the Challenge

This first step requires your personal commitment to this challenge and your belief in these principles and putting them to work for you. Of course, any skill takes practice, and you cannot realistically expect to put all of them into effect immediately. However, the minute you start to sell people the way they want to buy, you'll start to see immediate results.

Commit to Growth

“Change is inevitable... growth is optional.” We love that saying because it's true. Right now, you have the option to take this moment and make a life-changing decision. You may decide to keep learning about yourself, your strengths and weaknesses, how you make decisions, how you come across to other people, etc... You may decide to learn more about DISC styles and apply your new knowledge in other relationships beyond selling - relationships with your co-workers, children, spouse and/or family.

Hopefully, you may decide to use this report as a jumping-off point for a new direction in your career. If that thought excites you, we urge you to learn more about how DISC may be applied in all phases of business: prospecting, networking, marketing, communications, customer service, referral building, client loyalty, hiring, management, leadership, etc... We offer programs, technology, books, CD's, DVD's, self-paced online courses, speeches, and on-site workshops that are all specifically designed to help you apply this amazing concept in key facets of your business and your life.

Here's wishing you continued success!

So Now What?

This report is filled with information about your style and each of the four primary behavioral styles. So now you have an understanding and an awareness of the four different behavioral styles.

There are many suggestions in the application section of this report for you to apply this behavioral style information. Take the next step and DO the exercises if you€ skipped over them.

Don't put this report on a shelf or in a file. Your style is just not as important as having the opportunity to use this information to open up a meaningful dialogue with others to improve all your relationships. Use this report as a reference tool. There is a lot of information in it and it is not meant to be digested in just one reading.

Have fun with making a few minor changes in your behavior and experience the results. You might be surprised! Remember The Platinum Rule®: "Treat others the way THEY want to be treated." You will have much more success in all your relationships!
